12:45 PM – 1:45 PM Yellowstone	Regional Transmission Coordination and Planning Among Midwestern States States in the Midwest are evaluating and integrating technologies and clean energy standards in pursuit of the utility of the future. Although there are varying considerations with respect to the investment of distributed energy resources and the valuation of legacy generators, it may be beneficial to have

	more coordination among the states to facilitate greater efficiency in transmission building, the allocation of resource diversity, and best practices sharing. Ultimately, regional planning can avail neighboring states a holistic solution to achieve mutual goals in a shared power system. This panel will discuss the benefits, challenges and best practices of regional coordination in the Midwest. Panelists: Hon. Sadzi Martha Oliva, Illinois Commerce Commission (moderator)  Tanya Paslawski, Organization of MISO States  Shawn E. Schukar, Ameren Transmission Company of Illinois  Melissa Seymour, MISO

Well this is your opportunity. We have a group of brave commissioners who have graciously agreed to let you grill them with all the questions you may have about utility regulation. They've even agreed to give you insight on their favorite music if you so wish. Hear what several prominent Midwest States commissioners think and have to say on a multitude of topics. Our panels of commissioners have very diverse experiences, tenure, knowledge and approaches and it is sure to be a great discussion. Power Point slides are forbidden in this panel and we promise not to bore. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Hon. Nick Wagner, Iowa Utilities Board (moderator)</li> <li>• Hon.
